HARRY WILLIS WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO JOHNSON Young Colored Fighter Rated as A1

By Critics. It was the general impression among boxing fans that when the old quartet of colored stars—Jack Johnson, Joe Jeanette, Sam McVey and Sam Langford—passer beyond the useful age as fighters, the white boxers would breathe easier and feel safer with their titles, that is those who held titles. However, another colored star among the heavyweights has appeared in the person of Harry Wills and he is a good one, too. There are no others among the colored fighters just now to class with Wills and help him from a quartet such as made up the old one, although Kid Norfok of Panama is a very promising young colored heavyweight, but not of the class that Wills possesses. When Harry Wills was in Hayana during the time of the Jess Willard-Jack Johnson fight he made the remark that he could whip the two stars the same day. No one paid any attention to him and he was permitted to rest in peace with his knowledge of what he could do. Just the same there were many who saw the same Wills later who felt the same way, although it would have taken a mighty good man to beat Willard that day, for he was trained to the minute and as powerful as a 523 team of horses. Since that time 458 Wills, who is now 26 years of age. 120 has whipped all the men who cared dence over everything else. Consequently the motor service of the A. F. F. W. which has assumed considerable proportions, was in danger of being crippled. As this speaker told of the need for mechanics and the difficulty experienced in finding them in France. Miss Davis got her big idea.

"Why can't I go?" she asked. The speaker could do nothing but take such a voiunteer, so Miss Davis went to work in a garage. Now she knows just what to do to that thingumbob under the hood when the engine coughs twice and dies a lingering death. Futhermore, she took a pertectly good box of tools with her, guarded more jealously than her trunk, for without those she would be in difficulties when she begins to tinker. She improved her time while

SPORTING NOTES

Bert Daniels, once a popular member of the Yankees, will manage the St. Joseph's Western League team this year.

Pat Moran isn't worrying over the absence of Cy Williams now that Men-sel is playing great ball at the Phil-lies' centerfield.

Wobby Hammond had a hard time rounding out a team at Colgate uni-versity this spring. The former Pony was handicapped by injury to his star, Bill Reid, captain and first baseman.
